Tukey's Bridge

Portland in the 1790's was bounded by the sea and numerous small rivers and streams; travelers headed eastward, for example, had to go to Allen's Corner and over the Presumpscot River by a covered bridge. By 1791 a petition was sent to the General Court of Massachusetts asking that aid be given in building a dam across the cove between Sandy and Seacombe Points, with a road leading thereto, for the convenience of eastbound travelers. The petition was denied, but private citizens of the town of Portland three years later banded together under the name of "The Proprietors of Back Cove Bridge" and obtained a charter to build and operate a toll bridge. This was opened to the public in 1796 and was known for a time as Back Cove Bridge.

One Lemuel Tukey, who kept a tavern at the Portland end of the bridge, was an early toll collector, and the bridge gradually came to be known as Tukey's Bridge, which name it has retained.

As the town grew, travel over the bridge increased until by 1830 Portland citizens felt that the bridge had repaid its builders sufficiently for it to become free of tolls. The owners did not agree with this opinion, but six years later some of them did agree that the tolls be discontinued. Others of the proprietors could not see relinquishing the toll income and their attitude prevailed until the matter was taken to the State Legislature, which ordered the bridge opened free to the public in March, 1837.

One rugged individualist still held out, however, and, taking matters into his own hands, stood at the toll gate allowing none to pass until they paid him the toll.

A story goes that one day shortly after this, a group of young men from the town, intent on forcing the issue, appeared at the toll gate and demanded free passage. The determined proprietor held the gate more tightly closed against them. Warned that he would be tossed overboard into the icy water unless he stood aside, he hung onto the gate more determinedly than ever. The young men wrenched the gate loose, with the proprietor still clinging to it. Only when they started to toss the gate over the bridge rail did he drop his hold and escape their threatened ducking.

From that day Tukey's Bridge was free to the public.

The CRANBERRY KING

THIS is the season when turkeys and cranberries and the "fixin's" become the culinary symbol of the land. Ever since the days of the Pilgrims these two have been indispensable partners on the festive board.

However, unlike the early days the cranberry is now available the year 'round in several different forms. Down on Cape Cod where two out of every three berries harvested in the country are grown, and where the cranberry is known as the "first American fruit," a University of Maine alumnus is responsible for the growth of a $10,000,000 industry.

Marcus L. Urann '97, LL.D. '47, of South Hanson, Mass., president of the National Cranberry Association, makers of the nationally famous "Ocean Spray" cranberry products, is credited with developing this most highly concentrated agricultural crop in the country.

Boyhood Dream

Mr. Urann's first contact with this luscious red berry was as a youngster in Sullivan, Maine, overlooking beautiful Frenchmen's Bay. As a youth he noticed that the farmers that had cranberry bogs usually had fine homes and an air of prosperity, and when most boys of his neighborhood were dreaming of careers in the city, he told his mother that sometime he would own a cranberry bog.

Upon graduating from Sullivan High School, Mr. Urann entered the University from which he was graduated in 1897 with a B.S. degree. He was captain of the varsity football team of '96 and founded Phi Kappa Phi, national honorary scholastic society. An Oak Hall resident in those days, he also was a member of the Glee Club and The Cadet Board and A T Ω fraternity.

In 1897 he entered Boston University to study law, and after receiving his law degree he began the practice of law in Boston and North Easton. One of his first clients was a successful cranberry grower and with whom Mr. Urann later became associated in business.

When this cranberry grower told Urann of a 1100 per cent return in seven years he remembered his youthful determination to one day own a cranberry bog. He bought a 100 acre bog in Halifax, Mass. From that time on the name and personality of the man pictured above have been a most important one in the cranberry industry.

Organizing the United Cape Cod Cranberry Growers in 1903, he served as its president from 1907-1936. These years were ones in which Mr. Urann did much to stabilize the industry. Always an organizer and an originator of new methods, it disturbed Marcus Urann to each year see only a proportion of the cranberry crop sold while fresh, and the remainder left to rot. Too, in years of surplus production, returns to cranberry growers fell below production costs, and growers were actually making money only about three years out of every ten.

Each year heaps of rotting berries stood as mute testimony to an incomplete marketing procedure. It troubled this Maine Yankee to see good berries going to waste and the resulting loss in dollars.

Canned Cranberries

In the early days the Cape cranberries were picked just this side of ripeness and sold simply as berries, all in three months. The storekeeper kept "picking 'em over" to cull out the spoiled ones and the housewife made her supply up into rich, red sauce, strained or unstrained, until they "began to go bad."

Mr. Urann knew that through this method the cranberry lost some of its health-giving ingredients—present in the ripe berry. Canning had been tried, but unsuccessfully, but he was sure of his point. In 1912 he began experimenting with canned cranberry sauce. He and two or three helpers turned out their first pack, filling the cans with hand dippers and putting on the caps with a little hand operated machine—a far cry from the six modern Ocean Spray canning factories

Cranberries are harvested today in much the same fashion as they were one hundred years ago. However, the old wooden hand-rakes, now hanging on the walls of collectors of Early Americana, have been replaced by the more efficient and durable steel hand-rakes.

FIJI FIFTIETH

THIS past month Phi Gamma Delta observed the fiftieth anniversary of its founding at Maine. It was a double anniversary for the Phi Gams, for on February 28, 1874, Q.T.V. was installed on our campus. The Q.T.V. Society members later petitioned to become a chapter of Phi Gamma Delta and so a fiftieth and seventy-fifth anniversary is recognized.

Ralph Kneeland Jones '86, writing in Fernald's History of the University, says: "One important factor militated against fraternities at Maine. This was the hostility of the classical colleges to the Land Grant colleges and the consequent reluctance of existing fraternities to enter them. At this time the only institutions established under the Land Grant Act in which chapters had been placed were Cornell, Illinois, and Virginia Polytechnic, and no chapter had been established in any of the older state universities at so early a period of its life.

"In view of the attitude of the Greek letter fraternities, it was natural for a group of men at the Maine State College to accept a charter from the Q.T.V. Society, founded at the Massachusetts Agricultural College in 1869. On February 28, 1874, David P. Penhallow, M.A.C., 1873, installed the Orono chapter of Q.T.V., the second chapter of that fraternity."

Early meetings of Q.T.V. were held in various halls in Orono. In 1876 enough money was raised to build a hall on campus. A two story building was erected on the present site of Coburn Hall, much of the work being done by the undergraduates. The Society used the second floor for meetings, with a room on the ground floor being rented by the College for a classroom. This building was later moved back to a line parallel to Holmes Hall to make room for Coburn Hall.

This building was burned on February 12, 1901.

In 1889, Q.T.V. rented the "White House," later to be known as Mt. Vernon, on the site now occupied by Sigma Chi, with Omicron Epsilon Eta Pi and Phi Kappa Sigma renting the old Q.T.V. hall. Q.T.V. stayed in the "White House" until 1898 when a house was built under the direction of Perley F. Walker '96. It was about this time that the members of Q.T.V. petitioned to become members of Phi Gam and formal initiation as Omega Mu Chapter took place on November 24, 1899.

"Phi Gamma Delta waxed strong and lived contentedly in this house until the early '20's when there began to be talk of a new home," says Dean Emeritus James N. Hart '85 writing in the Phi Gamma Delta. "A chapter-house association was formed and action was taken immediately to raise funds. Under the personal supervision of Professor George H. Hamlin '73, the oldest living alumnus of Maine and believed to hold similar honors in the fraternity at the age of 99, a new house was constructed." This is the attractive chapter house now occupied by Phi Gamma Delta and known to many as Fiji Castle.

The fiftieth anniversary was a two-day affair. A dinner was held for all campus fraternity presidents and some of the administrative officers of the University. The following night an alumni-undergraduate dinner was served to a capacity group. Among those attending were charter members Arthur C. Westcott '99 and Prof. Emeritus Alpheus C. Lyon '02, Dean Emeritus James N. Hart '85, Justice Raymond Fellows '08, Congressman Frank Fellows '12, Clerk of Courts George P. Gould '90, and U. S. Commissioner Ballard Keith '08.

Introducing . . .

The newest member of the Alumni Council is Mrs. Leonard A. Pierce '41 of Bucksport. On the campus from 1937 to 1941 she was known as Helen B. Wormwood from Portland. As an undergraduate, Helen was outstanding in many fields. She was a consistent dean's list student, a Sophomore Eagle, president of her dormitory in her sophomore year, a senior resident in her senior year, a member of W.S.G.A. for four years, a member of the Student Senate, the Women's Forum, and president of the All-Maine Women her senior year. In the field of athletics she was a member of the All-Maine basketball team for three years and in her senior year won the University Seal, the highest award given in women's athletics.

She taught school for two years after her graduation in 1941 before her marriage to Leonard Pierce, a Bowdoin alumnus. He is associated with the St. Regis Paper Co. in Bucksport.

Mrs. Pierce has the distinction of being the youngest member of the Alumni Council and will bring the viewpoint of the more recent alumni to the deliberations of the group.

The QTV house (left), the first fraternity building on campus, was erected in 1876 on the site of Coburn Hall and was later moved to a location north of and in line with Holmes Hall. To the right is the present Phi Gam house on College Avenue erected in 1925. Its predecessor was located on the present site of Lambda Chi Alpha and was destroyed by fire in 1923.

UNION BUILDING SITE?

Last June at the annual meeting of the General Alumni Association a vote was passed expressing the hope that the Union Building or any building would not be erected just west of Fernald Hall. This broad expanse of lawn, punctuated by the Constitution Cannons, given by Llewellyn N. Edwards '98 Eng.D. '27, some alumni felt was a spot of such beauty that it should remain as it is.

The Union Building Fund Committee, therefore, viewed all available sites on the campus. At the time the location west of Fernald Hall was selected, it seemed the only one meeting the requirements that was available. The site east of the Library between Stevens and Rogers Halls was then reserved for a future fine arts and music hall. The M.C.A. and the Press occupy land that one day will be used for a technology classroom building. Some alumni favored the field in front of Balentine, but it was believed that this location was not centrally located.

Each spot of ground seemed to have its restrictions except that between Stevens and Rogers Hall. This was close by the center of student traffic, an important consideration for the Union. As the University grows in years to come, expansion would have to be to the east and then this site would be even more centrally located.

Sentiment grew in favor of this spot, and with Carnegie Hall admirably serving as an art and music center, informal inquiries were made of the Board of Trustees as to its availability.

Alumni Council Approves

At its regular fall meeting the Alumni Council upon recommendation of the Union Building Fund Committee approved either the original location chosen or the one mentioned just above, with a strong preference for the latter.

Since then the Board of Trustees have offered to consider the site between Stevens and Rogers Halls. It is expected that the Board will release this land at their meeting in January.

If such permission is given, the obstacle of location will have been surmounted to the satisfaction of all. A poll of the students by The Campus showed a preference for the new site. In fact, there seems to be much enthusiasm among the undergraduates for the new site. They have been heartened by the expressed hope that construction was being considered for the early spring.

One other important consideration yet remains and concerns construction. The goal of $900,000 has not been reached and funds available will not permit the construction of a building as planned.

Additional Funds Needed

The Alumni Council voted unanimously that the Union should include substantially all the facilities originally planned. This leaves the problem before the Union Building Committee of how to pay for the construction and discussions to this end are now being held with the Trustees.

To erect a memorial smaller in size than originally intended would indeed not be a fitting one. All the excess facilities have been eliminated from the plans and it is to be hoped that some way can be found to finance the construction of the Union Building that alumni wish to have. It is toward this goal that the Union Building Committee, the trustees and the Executive Committee of the Alumni Council are now working.

Funds are still being solicited in an effort to reach the campaign quota. The many alumni who have not yet subscribed to the fund are being actively encouraged to contribute.

Several alumni have already made year-end contributions and all alumni who have subscribed are urged to make additional pledges to the fund. Payments on these pledges can be made at the convenience of the subscriber.

Androscoggin Goes Over

That steady progress in the campaign is being made is demonstrated by the fact that Androscoggin County has oversubscribed its quota of $17,600 under the chairmanship of F. Owen Stephens '17. In placing Androscoggin on the Honor Roll, much credit must be given to John L. McCobb '25 who assisted Mr. Stephens in the latter stages of the campaign.

Seven areas have now exceeded their quotas with several others approaching the century mark.

Familiar Faces . . .

Pack in 1916, a young man, fresh from a Boston linotype school, went to work for the University Press. He was going to work for three to four weeks for he was only to get the new linotype machine operating properly. Besides, he saw opportunity beckoning in the city and not on a college campus. But, Roy Libby never did leave. His stay prolonged itself as the work grew more varied and interesting with the growth of the University. In 1921 he was made superintendent of the University Press.

Since then his has been a familiar face to a host of students, particularly those who have worked on The Campus and the Prism. He has been a counselor to the many students who have been confronted with the intricacies of printing. With patience and friendliness he has each year helped a new group of undergraduates in their layout and printing problems. From him they have learned the importance of quality in printing. He has been exacting but only because he believes that is the way to teach in what may be called a "laboratory" of printing and to maintain the prestige of the University Press.

A native of Bangor, Mr. Libby has for many years lived in Orono. His son, Donald, is a graduate of the class of 1943, pulp and paper major.

Roy can often be found poring over the latest hunting and fishing equipment catalogs, not critically studying the printing techniques, but looking for the latest paraphernalia of his favorite pastimes.

The Undergraduate

THE undergraduate returned from the Thanksgiving holiday loaded down with skis, ski poles, skates, snowshoes, gum-rubbers and other impedimenta in anticipation of deep snow. The Boston train had all the ear-marks of a ski train and the conductor was heard to sigh with relief when the last coed had alighted in Bangor without anyone having been impaled on a ski pole.

The "twenty-four hour rule," whereby cuts are counted double twenty-four hours before or after a holiday, and a bone of contention with the students, was in effect.

In spite of all the heavy clothing and sports equipment dragged back to campus, there was no snow. However, the skaters soon had a chance to pick themselves off the ice at the skating area east of the Field House. Many did so and sat for many cheerful hours in the "Hut" built by the Outing Club at the edge of the skating rink. Here the undergraduate could loll in front of the fireplace wearing his skates and enjoy his coffee and sandwich while his more ambitious classmates skated in preparation for the ice revue which is to be part of this year's winter carnival on January 13-14.

The Outing Club has also erected a hut on t'other side of the Stillwater at the ski slope. They operate a tow where for a nominal charge the work is taken out of skiing by getting a fast ride back up the hill (when and if there's snow).

Student government was somewhat of a problem for the undergraduate, with its three bodies: the Men's Senate, the Women's Student Government Association, and the General Senate.

The General Senate has been underfire from some quarters because its meetings were not open to all. Sharp barbs were thrown by writers in the Campus, but some appeasement was offered when the By-Laws of the Senate were amended to allow anyone to attend "providing he does not interfere with the conduct of the meeting."

The Men's Senate passed, by a large majority, a recommendation to the Administration that met with applause from the hopeful undergraduate. Abolishing of final exams for seniors was the recommendation, but as yet the faculties of the various colleges have not taken action.

At the same meeting a move to establish a single student governing group was squashed, but favorable action was taken to investigate "the rumblings of discontent with the Men's Senate that are evident in some sections."

The General Senate at a special meeting debated the question of class elections. Throwing out by a narrow margin the former primary system, the new system proposes that a student can become a candidate for a class office by filing or having filed a petition signed by 50 "certified voters of his class." The candidate must file a statement evidencing his "interest" in the position.

When word got about the campus that the Union Building might be erected south of Stevens Hall there was an immediate quickening of interest. The undergraduate not only approved the change, but he was heartened by the further word that it was hoped that construction might start in the early spring.

He could anticipate "in his time," using the facilities promised in the Union. He also knew that here would be the melting pot of the University that would be a boon to the Maine spirit.

While dreaming about the pleasantness of the Union Building, the undergraduate was rudely interrupted by his roommate with chatter about the round of prelims that are customary between Thanksgiving and Christmas. The sobering thoughts of prelims were balanced by the realization that house parties, the Military Ball, and the basketball season were upon him for relaxation and, too, it wouldn't be long before he would be taking off for home on a generous Christmas holiday.

Cranberry King

which today turn out 85,000,000 cans of sauce.

These early experiments proved successful and soon several other growers in Massachusetts and New Jersey began selling canned cranberry sauce. In 1930 Mr. Urann organized with them to form a canning cooperative, retaining the Ocean Spray name, and invited all growers to participate. The new cooperative had a contract between grower and canner by which the grower would put in a percentage of his crop which was processed and marketed. After taking out the operating expenses, the earnings went back to grower in relation to the number of barrels of berries he supplied. This plan removed the danger of lowered prices due to surplus crops and also allowed for a greatly enlarged market.

Stability and security have been brought to the industry, and through advertising and aggressive promotion the cranberry season is now stretched to twelve months instead of three.

Mr. Urann has been president and general manager of National Cranberry Association (formerly Cranberry Canners, Inc.) since 1930, a director of the National Canners Association, president and director of the Massachusetts Canners Association, and in 1942 was awarded a medal of the Massachusetts Society for Promotion of Agriculture on the occasion of its 150th anniversary for recognition of his work in developing the cranberry industry.

New Developments

Not satisfied with just canning cranberries, Mr. Urann in 1937 began freezing them and in so doing rescued many growers from serious loss. That year a 200,000 barrel surplus could not be sold. Many commercial canners by then had taken on cranberry products as part of their line. With the huge surplus, their buying virtually ceased, and offerings to processors at $2 a barrel found few takers, because it was generally felt that plenty of supply could be picked up later at $1.

Marcus Urann stepped into the picture in a way that long will be remembered. He borrowed a million dollars from the Springfield Bank for Cooperatives to advance to growers, and bought the entire 200,000 barrels, at an average gross price of $9 a barrel which meant a net return to producers of around $6 a barrel. The surplus was put into freezers. It took two years to work it off, in the various processed cranberry products.

For about ten years prior to the entry of the United States into the second World War, the Association had participated in the dehydration of cranberries in limited quantities. A few hundred barrels of cranberries were dehydrated each year and sold to hotels, restaurants, and institutions, but no effort was made to extend the use of the product because there was already an active demand for the total cranberry crop through two channels—raw cranberries and Ocean Spray Cranberry Sauce.

With the beginning of the war, the demand for dehydrated foods took a sudden leap. The Association was fortunate in having ready for production its perfected dehydrated cranberries which had been held in readiness for 10 years awaiting a demand.

Thus another use for cranberries has been developed. Ocean Spray also markets cranberry juice cocktail, marmalade, spiced cranberries and frozen cranberry juice.

Cranberries are big business today. the tiny red berry that lay almost neglected along the Cape Cod shores for so many years is now Massachusetts' largest export crop. Part of its success story can be credited to the sharp tangy flavor and bright color with which nature endowed it, but a good share of the credit must go to Marcus Urann, his dream of one day owning a cranberry bog, his Yankee ingenuity, and his determination to solve some of the problems of the industry.

Seeking to provide more effective integration of all medical activities of these two world renowned institutions, the Board of Trustees of the University and of the Hospital are combining under a single administrative head the Hospital and the medical institutions of the University.

In announcing the new post, Dr. Detlev W. Bronk, president of the University, said:

"This is a significant step in our new program for establishing greater administrative and intellectual unity throughout all Hopkins organization.

"In order to correct the unfortunate social and academic consequences of intense specialization, universities have an especial responsibility to develop closer relationship between all fields of learning, between scholars and men of affairs.

"This move will facilitate such co-operation between the humanities, the social and natural sciences and the medical sciences whereby the wisdom of scholars and the discoveries of scientists are used in the service of mankind."

Dr. Reed a few years ago received the Lasker Award of the American Public Health Association. He and Mrs. Reed (Marion Balentine '07) live in Baltimore and have a farm in Shelburne, New Hampshire.

Lowell J. Reed

Honored—

A pioneer in both the electrical vehicle and material handling industries, Enoch J. Bartlett '02, EE '06, was honored this fall at a testimonial dinner in Cleveland. The Electric Industrial Truck Association, which alumnus Bartlett helped to start 35 years ago, sponsored the dinner.

An award for "conscientious and distinguished service to the industry" was given to Mr. Bartlett. He was also given an engraved wrist watch.

Retiring the first of the year as president of the Baker-Raulang Co., a post he held for 23 years, he now is president emeritus serving both as a director and advisor.

Specialist—

The High Commissioner's Office of Economic Affairs in Augsburg, has announced the appointment of Donald A. Piper '37 as product specialist department chief. This is the latest of several promotions received by Piper since going to Germany in 1947 as post education supervisor in Munich.

He was in charge of all army educational work including the establishment and organization of the Munich and Augsburg posts and sub-posts. Later he became educational advisor for a larger area.

Following this assignment he was administrative officer BiZonia in Frankfurt.

During the Air Lift to blockaded Berlin, Piper was in charge of the food life in Berlin with its problems of supply, allocations and a balanced diet. It was during this period that he met Prof. Matthew Highlands '28 who was in Germany on leave from the University to set up dehydration procedure.

He then was assigned as chief, food and agriculture, for Land Bremen.

Had a nice note from Betty (Barrows) Pendleton—she reports that they are now living in Island Falls, Maine, where Bob is a Maine Forest Service Supervisor. Betty asked me if I had ever reported the birth of Sara Bratton—daughter of Mary and Bill. Can't recall ever having done so—so there you have it!

Went to the Bates-Maine football game and every once in a while—through the deluge of water—I was able to catch a glimpse of Jack Farnsworth and Johnny Doyle bravely sitting it out! Let me hear from you all!

Three items from the Alumni Office and just about as many from contacts add up to a short column.

Stanley Blanchard lives in Cumberland Center where he is engaged in farming.

Roger Hodgkins is chief engineer for Guy Gannett Broadcasting Service in Portland. He lives on Sea Barn Rd., Cape Elizabeth.

William Beazley is a chemical engineer with his business location at 3000 Highland Ave., Niagara Falls, N. Y. He lives on River Rd., Youngstown, N. Y.

We attended the Maine-Bates game with Dot (Findlay '33) Carnochan and her husband, John. I'm sorry to say that if there had been a familiar face, it would have been obscured by the downpour. Consequently there was no chinning and chatting. I did catch a glimpse of Eddy Jordan.

Bob recently heard from Bill Gilbert. Bill has been brought into the home office of his company, the Connecticut General Life Insurance Company, Hartford, Conn. from the Philadelphia office. He is now in the Agency Department and is living at 624 Ridge Rd., Wethersfield, Conn.

Last week I had occasion to see Ken Foster for the first time in about fourteen years. I must say that all Ken's advancements and promotions have left him unscarred, outwardly at least. He has changed very little in appearance—no less hair and very little more weight, the same debonair manner. He is the father of three daughters. It was nice seeing Ken.

I had a nice note from Merle Hildreth awhile ago. Merle is still in Scout work. He is now a Scout Executive in Worcester, Mass., and is very enthusiastic about his work. Another year and the Cub Scouts will be running around here!

Lyman Brewer is radio engineer for station WGAN in Portland, and is living at 168 Ludlow Street, Portland 5, Maine.

So soon we've come to the end of this month's news items. Didn't some of you go to homecoming? Can't you share the wealth with those of us who are so far removed?

Happy holidays ahead! And do let us hear from you soon.

Homecoming week end has come and gone, and despite the outcome of the game (favorite comment—"It took them 28 years to do it.") it was a lot of fun. We attended the game with Reg Naugler, John Miller, Candy Lynch, and wives. Saw a lot of people we knew but very few 36ers.

Winifred Coburn Anderson visited me on the Friday before the game while Henry was attending meetings in Orono. Sorry we missed you on Saturday, Win.

We saw John Getchell Saturday night at a dance. He is married and has two children, a boy and a girl, and has been working at the Experiment Station at U. of M. since 1945.

"Puss" (Brown) and Frank Parker had Louise Steeves and Kay Wormwood as guests during Teachers Convention. They invited Eddie and me out for an evening and what a great occasion that was. I'm afraid the men didn't have much of a chance in the conversation. Steevic is a Real Estate broker in Lincoln and Kay is Principal of the Pond Cove Elementary Schools in Cape Elizabeth, Maine. "Puss" is librarian at the Garland Street Junior High School in Bangor. In spite of all the talk the only '36 news I could gather (aside from the above) was of Ed Backer who is a member of the Portland Police Department.

I met Pearl Buck Todd recently at a Girl Scout Committee meeting here in Hampden. She is a social worker with the Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Public Assistance in Bangor. Her residence is R.F.D. #2, Bangor.

This must needs be a hasty note, since we are in as nearly what resembles a rush at Granby High School, as it is possible to get in the South. The reason? The forthcoming production of Shakespeare's Twelfth Night is in the offing Friday, and I'll give you one guess as to the identity of the technical director!

First on the list is the grandest letter imaginable from Lester Smith who informs us of a new arrival in the Smith family, Laurie Jean, a sweet baby girl to balance those three boys; Stephen, Warren, and Peter. According to Lester the dining room table is rapidly filling up and the income tax is rapidly coming down. Congratulations are being received at 19 School Street, Burlington, Vermont, where Lester is still teaching farmers how to grow lush grass and clover for the dairy cattle whose numbers are larger than the number of people in that fair state.

From faithful Bette Kilpatrick's envelope comes the following interesting news.

Clifton L. Carroll is with the U. S. coast and Geodetic Survey which is part of the Department of Commerce. His work is that of a cartographer. He lives at 2412 S. 26th Street, Arlington, Virginia.

Back in the Northland again, we find Leonard E. Crockett with the Coca Cola Bottling Plants, Incorporated, 39 Main Street, Sanford, Maine, as Branch Manager. His home address is 41 Ridgeway Avenue, Sanford.

R. Carroll Jones has strayed to Shelburne Falls, Massachusetts, where he lives at 11 Severance Street and is head of the Vocational Agriculture department of Shelburne High School.

A note from John Gowell includes his business address which is 5 Lawrence Street, Bloomfield, New Jersey. As you know, he was recently appointed manager of Sales Forecasting for G.E.'s Air Conditioning Plant.

Leland Page has moved from Louisville, Kentucky, to Boston, where his address is 939 Federal Building, Boston 9, Massachusetts. He is a member of the U. S. Geological Survey.

Arthur Holbrooke is Marine Engineer with Bethlehem Steel Company, Quincy, Massachusetts. His home address is 6 Lantern Lane, Hingham, Massachusetts.

The Sports Department of the Portland Press Herald has carried items this month about John Gowell in track, Joe Hamlin and Wally Gleason in football. The latter in relation to the 1937 Bowdoin vs. Maine game at Orono, when Joe and Wally contributed greatly to holding Bowdoin to a 0-0 tie. Too bad our classmates weren't around to help this year.

Joe Hamlin (Major U. S. Army) is taking the advanced quartermaster course in general supply at Quartermaster School, Camp Lee, Virginia. This is a ten months course.

We were unable to get up to Homecoming—but heard about it from the Estabrooks who stopped in on their way back to Brattleboro. I hadn't seen Peg and Estie's daughters since 1945 and found that they are quite the young ladies now. Lynn is seven and Diane five.

'tis different tho'— and I'm writing off this column at the early morning hour of 7:30. So, here goes for news of you—

A welcome letter from Helen Hauck Bartley, 300 E. Montecito, Sierra Madre, Calif., informs us that the Bartleys took a 5 weeks' trip East last year, traveling 7800 miles from California to Delaware to Maine, Minnesota, and back to Calif. They had a grand time—spent a night with "Coke" (Eleanor Crowell Marshall—now Mrs. Phil Plaisted of Ames Iowa!) in So. Portland, stayed on campus a few days and took in all the sights. Susan, who was a year and a half, was the best traveler! The Bartleys have now moved into their own home (Bart worked week ends with the carpenter so he had a real part in the building of it.) With a larger house, they needed a bigger family, and so, on August 15, Stephen was welcomed into the family.

Helen writes they have seen several U. of M. couples and hastens to add news of them. Frank and Hulda Pond Emerson and young son, Billy, were dinner guests of the Bartleys recently. The Emersons were vacationing in Calif. at the time. Frank is working for G.E. at White Sands, N. Mexico, and they are living in Las Cruces. Likewise have they seen Bob, Martha, and Christopher Dodge who live in Pasadena, and Doc '40 and Martha (Chase '38) Gerrish and two sons who live in Hollywood. Yes, right you are, Helen—you certainly do manage to see quite a few from the good old State of Maine. Bart is working at the Jet Propulsion Lab. at Cal. Tech. and likes it very much. We're certainly happy to hear from the "Sunny" state of Calif., and quote Helen, "the welcome mat is out for any Mainiacs who are out this way."

And now from 3016 Seminole St., Miami 33, Florida, comes a record—yes, a real record—announcing the birth of Master Arthur Carlson. 'Twas a most novel way of spreading the stork news, for apparently the record was a recording of one of the big football games—Army versus Michigan—when, of a sudden we hear, "we interrupt this program momentarily to bring you a special bulletin from our Herald news room studio. Today, Oct. 8, 1949, is an historic day for Miami. Early this morning Arthur Carlson, one of WQAM's engineers became the proud papa of a 6 pound 1½ ounce baby boy. Ever since Dottie went to the hospital, Arthur has been chewing his finger nails and having a heck of a time concentrating on his work at the transmitter. So, today he made a jet assisted trip to the Jackson Memorial Hospital to be on hand when Master Arthur Palmer Carlson arrived at 6:58 a.m. Mother and son are doing very well—much better than the father at present!" Congratulations, Dottie and Art!

And from New Hampshire we learn that Leo Estabrook is associated with Nichols Poultry Farm, Inc. Leo is in the Sales division. He resides at 26 Green St., Exeter, New Hampshire.

From Rhode Island comes word from George Weidman that he is a salesman for Low Temperature Insulation at 147-153 South Main St., Providence. George lives at 88 Wesleyan Ave.

This column is very pleased to give forth with the notice of a picture to be released soon—"Wagon Master." And the news is that Ford-Merian Copper Company, Argosy Pictures, now has as a scenarist, Patrick Ford, who is writing an original screen play under that title. So, let's all take in "Wagon Master." The picture will star Ben Johnson who starred in "The Mighty Joe Young," and will deal with a Mormon migration.

And to add joy to the Ruth (Wilson) and Bill Gooding household, comes Timothy James, born Sept. 12. Congratulations, Ruth and Bill! The Goodings live at Rd. #1, Headlands Rd., Painesville, Ohio.

Via Polly (Dudley) Beames, I find that Kenneth and Willa (Dudley) McKnight are in Mapleton. Kenneth is associated with Sears Roebuck where he is employed in the Sales Department. The McKnights have two children—Carol Ann, a little over a year and Billy who is three. Willa and Kenneth visited Polly and Geoffrey in Westwood, Mass., recently.

Well, folks, guess this brings the '43 column to a close for this year. But I shall meet you all again come January of 1950. We wish you and yours a Very Merry Christmas!

Have an extra Merry Christmas!

By way of a Round Robin letter, I have the facts on Carolyn Small. Carolyn's address is still 5703-18th N. E., Seattle 5, Wash., and she is happily working in the Catalog Division of the library at the University of Washington. In her letter, Carolyn tells the dramatic tale about a trip which she and Romaine Littlefield took into Oregon, California, and Nevada in "a '38 Studebaker which was practically at the end of its life." In spite of brakes and lights giving out at frequent intervals, the two had a wonderful time and many wonderful adventures.

Well, this is all for now. If you want a longer column, you know what you can do about it!

How nice it was to see so many of you at Homecoming. Saw but didn't have a chance to speak to Irma Miller Goldsmith and "Mickey." The Goldsmiths are living in Old Town. Mickey graduated from Maine last spring.

Talked for a long while with Evie (Shaw) and Art Moulton after the game. The Moultons are now living in New York. The address—26-15 166th St., Flushing, L. I., N. Y. The Moultons had a lovely late summer wedding in Augusta. Evie's roommate in Boston, Jane Murphy, was her maid of honor. And Evie's brother, Joe, who is a junior at Maine, gave her away. There were quite a few '46ers at the ceremony. Among them Joan Potter and Virginia Tufts Chaplin. Art is a Sigma Nu and graduated from Maine in 1947. He is with the Carrier Corp. affiliated with the New York office.

After the game I saw Hal Parady at the Phi Mu Delta House. Hal is now working with the Westinghouse Electric Co. Home address—22 Hobart St., New Haven, Conn.

Also have a few other addresses to add here. M/Sgt. Marvin Stevens, USMC, is now at Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa, in the Naval Science Department.

Henry C. Reardon, from Augusta, who started in our class, graduated from Bowdoin in 1948 and is now attending Bentley School of Accounting while living at 1091 Boylston St., Boston.

Connie Cooper, who has been a Home Demonstration Agent for the U. of M., is now working at Cornell for her Master's degree.

Received a lovely note from Joan Potter. I told you last month that "Pottso" was engaged to Frank H. Robart, Jr. Joanie wrote of having lunch with Evie Shaw Moulton and Marion Weeks Pils. Marion and her husband, Bob, summered in England, France, and Italy. Joanie is advising the Tri-Delt Chapter at B.U.

I had a long telephone conversation during Homecoming with Gene Emerson. All seems well with our prexy.

Guess everyone has been so busy that they have forgotten to write me this month. Therefore we haven't much news.

As it happened I was not able to get to Homecoming this year. Certainly hated having to miss it. I'm sure a lot of you went, so why not drop me a line and tell me about it?

I did manage to get to the Bates-Maine game at Lewiston where I saw just loads of Maine kids. Had a nice chat with Lala Jones Dinsmore between halves in the pouring rain. It seems so good to see a member of the '47 gang. Well, on to the personals—

Football's gone; Christmas is here; New Year's resolutions coming up—practically summer already.

Betty Small Cunningham seems to be breaking into print pretty regularly, but I thought I'd better straighten out any confusion I may have caused. Her last name is now Cunningham (Mrs. Cortlandt B. Cunningham) as it appeared in the November issue and as it was left out in the October issue.

There've been some "bebis." Ronald Packard Stephens was born October 12, 1949, and is living with Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Stephens, Jr., at 559 Court Street in Auburn. Frank is with E. W. Penley Company, a meat packing firm in Auburn.

Andy and Flash Gordon have a red-headed Paula Ann as of July 20, 1949. Flash is going to Harvard Business School, and they're living in a new, six-room apartment at 27 Lawrence Street in Cambridge, Mass.

Jo and George Loeber have a son, Louis George Loeber, III, born October 12. George is with the William S. Merrell Company, a pharmaceutical house.

Billie and Dick Cutts have a baby girl, Judith Marion, born November 4, 1949. Dick's doing graduate work at Syracuse University. The girls are outnumbering the boys so far this year. You know what that'll mean on campus in 1971.

Mal Colby has brought us up to date on himself since graduation. He went on active duty with the Air Force in August, 1948, and was assigned to Air Installations Officers school at Wright Field, Ohio, for 12 weeks; then had a leave, bought a new car and drove to Frisco. He left the States for Okinawa December 28, assigned to the 802nd Engineer Aviation Battalion as a construction officer working on an airstrip. The tour of duty is 15 months and he expects to be back by the first of April. Mal has been through two typhoons—doesn't like them a bit, has spent two weeks on leave in Japan and is coaching the battalion football team—has a won-lost record of 3-1 and expects it to be 8-1 by the season's end. The address is Lt. Malcolm O. Colby, 802nd EAB Co. A, APO #239, c/o P. M., San Francisco, Calif.

Liz Clark and I are both teaching here in the high school in Rockland, and so I manage to have Liz "reporting," too. "Mike" Webber is teaching up in Rockport and the three of us get together quite often.

Recently received a note from Louis Albert who is now a student at the Latin American Institute in New York, studying foreign trade. His wife, Marielle, and their son, who was born July 6, are in Quebec City while Louis tries to find an apartment. Louis reports that he is anxious to hear from the crowd. HE BRINGS AN ARMFUL OF COURTESY, TOO

The man who comes to install or repair your telephone brings something more to your home than equipment, tools and efficiency.

He brings courtesy and consideration and a genuine desire to please. He treats your home and the things in it as carefully as though they were his own—cleans up and puts everything back in place when he's finished.

He brings along the realization that he is the representative of thousands of telephone men and women you may never see—all working together to give you friendly, constantly improving telephone service at reasonable cost.
